

Week 5

“An awful lot of schooling still consists of making kids cram forgettable facts into short-term memory. And the kids themselves are seldom consulted about what they’re doing, even though genuine excitement about (and proficiency at) learning rises when they’re brought into the process, invited to search for answers to their own questions and to engage in extended projects.”

— Alfie Kohn, The perils of “Growth Mindset” education: Why we’re trying to fix our kids when we should be fixing the system (aka liberal propaganda)
